Winter Goes - the Beechcraft 1900 D Airliner Comes

Beechcraft Berlin Aviation GmbH - in cooperation with Raytheon Aircraft, Wichita – places a Beechcraft 1900 D Airliner for demonstration flights at Berlin-Tempelhof at your disposal.

For many years the 1900 D Airliner has been a „quiet love“ for Beechcraft Berlin Aviation GmbH. You remember maybe...

As far back as 1999, our company undertook a remarkable and unique refurbishing of a 1900 D commuter aircraft, converting it into a VIP version. During refurbishing and the following certification by the Civil Aviation Authority, the entire interior was changed into an exclusive 12-seater. The versatility of the Beechcraft 1900 D Airliner was extended again.

The 1900 D Airliner is in operation worldwide, as 19-seat passenger airplane, a freight carrier or an ambulance airplane in humanitarian service.

We are convinced that our East European neighbours will have a demand for this versatile airplane, too.

The 1900 D is the only airplane of this class to have a cabin height of 1,80m.

For humanitarian service, our cooperation partner Spectrum Aeromed has fully certified ambulance systems for the 1900 D Airliner. It can be deployed with up to three stretcher systems.

Decades of experience with the Beechcraft KING AIR series have gone into the construction of the Airliner. Among others, one result of this development worth mentioning is the enlargement of the CG area by offering more flexibility in loading passengers, luggage and freight.

We will be exhibiting the Beechcraft 1900 D Airliner at the Berlin Air Show ILA 2004 from May 10 to 16, 2004 at Berlin-Schoenefeld Airport, stall 654.

If you wish to transport your passengers, patients or freight with a 1900 D in the future, we will be pleased to send you detailed information.

Many greetings from the most impressive airport of the world, Berlin-Tempelhof
